National Association of Anorexia Nervosa and Associated Disorders (ANAD) distributes information about eating disorders to health professionals and interested people to inform them on the various aspects of eating disorders. Libraries, schools, universities and other institutions use ANAD as a resource center. Thousands of talks, workshops, and seminars on understanding and preventing eating disorders are made each year by ANAD group leaders, trained volunteers, and staff.

ANAD's referral list includes over 2,000 therapists, hospitals, and clinics in the U.S., Canada and several other countries which treat eating disorders Offers some information in Spanish.

Helpline - 888-375-7767- is open Central Time, Monday through Friday from 9 am-5 pm. Staff can help you find the treatment to fit your needs.
